

Images of Learning

from around the world

A collection of diverse images of 'learning', to illustrate the diversity of learning and teaching globally

The 'Images of Learning' project aims to gather 100 diverse images of 'learning' from around the world, with a view to creating a number of resources for initial teacher education programmes, and also within schools.

The project team consists of six third-year student-teachers from MIC Thurles (Aisling Doyle, Julia Kirby, Michelle Murphy, Grace O'Leary, Emily O'Shaughnessy and Deirdre Walsh) who are all studying on the concurrent four-year post-primary initial teacher education degree at MIC St. Patrick's Campus Thurles, and who all bring something different and unique to our project.

The project team is funded by Concern and led by Dr Gerry Jeffers, former Chairperson of the Ubuntu Network and lecturer at Maynooth University's Education Department, and Dr Nigel Quirke-Bolt, Lecturer of Education on post-primary initial teacher education programmes and postgraduate programmes in MIC St. Patrick's Campus Thurles
